Try to login to X-Forces forum and you will find that there is message about new updated 2.0.5 A: It sounds like you have not yet installed the software correctly. As the error suggests, the activated product is the wrong one. I would suggest doing the following, if you can. (If you are using the trial license, first make sure that your activation code still works.) Go to Autodesk web site. For the Windows version, go to Click on the product you have to activate. If you don't have that product license, then click on the product you already have and start the installation. Ignore the first screen, click Next. Wait about 5 minutes and then go back to your previous window. Click on Help->What's new->Activation. The page should load, and you need to login and enter the code that was automatically generated for you. As you do all this, you might notice a red icon in the upper right that says "Invalid license key" or something like that. Ignore it. BEAR MAIL For a larger bear on a bad day, please call 911. Your bear may not be harmed, and you may help them get home safely. For help with a smaller bear, try one of the following f678ea9f9e
